“With the DocSite registry system, I can run a monthly list of patients who have fallen outside of parameters that have been collaboratively set for their chronic condition.

I can say to Ms. Jones, ‘We’ll need to check your lipids in another two months to see if they have improved with the new medicine.’

By doing this, I’m able to drastically reduce the number of patients previously written off as ‘noncompliant.’ We are fixing one type of error of omission.

Imagine the impact if all providers in our community adopted registries.”

- Gordon Moore, M.D., Rochester, New York

Profile:

Solo Practitioner, Idealized Micro Practice setting

Challenge:

Leaving a lucrative group practice to pioneer the Idealized Micro Practice movement meant Dr. Moore needed the best health informatics possible. Knowing chronic disease patients required the most care and time to treat, he sought technology solutions that could address their specific needs without requiring staff to support them.

DocSite Solution:

DocSite Registry™ provides clinicians a patient-centric registry ideally suited to managing patients with single or multiple chronic conditions. Accessible via the Internet using any standard web browser, DocSite Registry provides guideline-driven physician prompts when they are most needed: at the point of care. Additionally, automated patient “follow-up” letters involve patients in their care plan acting both as a reminder and report card for progress.

Valuable Results:

Dr. Moore proactively plans for and schedules appointments for his patient population based on provided reports using key analyses for each diagnosis his patients face. He immediately saw improved clinical outcomes within his chronic disease patient population because of the ease of implementation, and all without disrupting his current workflow or productivity.
